Perceus kills Medusa

Time	Activity	Equipment	Scouter
17:00 (15 min)	Grand Howl Duty six: Green Inspection	Skin, flag, Totem pole
King Polydectes wanted to marry Perseus's mother, Danaë, but saw the young hero as an obstacle. Hoping to get Perseus killed, the king demanded Medusa's head as a wedding gift. Medusa was a Gorgon—a monster with wings, brazen claws, and living, venomous snakes for hair—and one look into her eyes turned any mortal to stone

Knowing the task was nearly impossible, the gods intervened to help Perseus. Athena: Gave him a highly polished, reflective bronze shield.Hermes: Gifted him a pair of winged sandals to fly and a razor-sharp, adamantine sickle.The Nymphs: Provided the Cap of Darkness (which granted invisibility) and a magic pouch to safely carry the head. Lets see what things we can use to also help us in our time of need.

Guided by the gods, Perseus first sought out the Graeae, three old women who shared one eye and one tooth between them. By stealing their eye, Perseus forced them to reveal the location of the Gorgons' lair. Upon arriving at the Gorgons' island, Perseus waited until Medusa and her sisters fell asleep. Knowing that looking directly at the Gorgons would mean instant death, he used Athena's reflective shield as a mirror to guide his movements safely. Wearing the Cap of Darkness to remain invisible, he crept backward, looked only at her reflection, and used Hermes's sickle to cleanly cut her head off. Lets use our sense of smell to find out what is poisonous and safe to eat…
