Previously, we learnt how to throw a line to rescue someone. Remember, you never reach or swim out to help someone, rather throw them something that floats.
16:45	05	ACTIVE GAME: ACTIVE GAME: Reach and rescue Cubs line up, back-to-back, in two equal lines down the centre of the playing area. One team are 'reaches' and the other team 'rescuers'. The leader calls out rrrreaches or rrrrescuers (rolling the 'r' so that the Cubs cannot guess what is coming). If 'rescuers' is called, they turn and chase the 'reaches'. Any 'reaches' caught join the 'rescuers' team. The 'reachers' who cross the designated boundary line cannot be caught. The game continues. When time is up, the largest team is the winner. 16:55-17:45	10	BASE 1: REVISION GAME: Call for help Cubs sit in a circle and are numbered one to six. A cell phone is placed in the centre of the circle. The leader shares an emergency scenario with the Pack, for example: "There has been an accident at the public swimming pool on the corner of Spine and Eisleben in Mitchells Plain. A young boy has injured his head and is bleeding." The leader then calls out a number. All Cubs with that number stand up, run clockwise around the outside of the circle, and return to their place. The first Cub to reach the telephone pretends to dial the emergency number and clearly delivers the message. • If the message is correct, the Cub scores one point. • If the Cub hesitates or gives incorrect information, the other Cub(s) with the same number may raise a hand and have a turn. • The first Cub to give the correct message earns the point. Remind Cubs that emergency numbers are for real emergencies only. Always tell the operator where you are, what happened, give your contact number, and stay on the line.	Play Phone	Ryan

Sheetbend: flat knot for an arm sling, round turn anchors a rope to a sturdy object like a pole or tree, Bowline, knot that prevents a loop from tightening~~	Rope box.	Cub instructors (If we do not find any this base falls away and we divide the Cubs into 3 groups)
	10	BASE 4: DEMONSTRATION: Recovery position The first thing to do, without delay, is to lay the victim on their side, open the airway and keep it open. If the head is tilted forwards this may obstruct the airway and hinder breathing, so tilt the person's head back as far as it can go. Very often breathing will start again quite naturally. A person who cannot breathe naturally will struggle for breath, and their face and lips will turn blue. As soon as natural breathing starts, the heaving movements of the chest will stop, and the colour of the face and lips will turn pink again.	Demonstration and application	Baloo
