Alright cubs—the Jungle calls! 🐾 It's time to become Jungle Hoppers—move like you're swimming in the river!" "Remember—keep moving. The sharks are watching… and the crocs always strike! 🐊
17:40 (10)	Jungle hoppers Pretend you are swimming in the river. You must keep moving. Scatter the hula hoops across the lawn. Ensure the hula hoops are spread out. Hula hoops= safe island Grass = crocodile infested water. The island hoppers must constantly swim in the water while trying not to be caught by the crocodiles. If a Crocodile tags you, you become a Crocodile too!	Hula hoops	All
Now the Jungle grows quiet… it's board-game time!"
17:50 (20)	Lets play Mancala! Mancala is one of the oldest board games in the world, with origins traced back to ancient Africa. Setup & Mechanics ● Board Setup: 12 small pits (6 per player) and 2 large end stores (Mancalas). Place 4 beans in each of the 12 pits (48 total). ● Objective: Capture and store more beans in your store than your opponent. Core Rules ● Sowing: On your turn, pick up all beans from any pit on your side and deposit them one by one counterclockwise into adjacent pits, including your store (skip your opponent's store). ● Free Turn: If your last dropped seed lands directly in your own store, you get an immediate extra turn. ● Capturing: If your last dropped seed lands in an empty pit on your side, you capture that seed along with all beans in the opponent's pit directly opposite, placing them into your store. ● Game End: The game ends as soon as one player's 6 pits are completely empty. The other player gathers all remaining beans on their side and puts them in their store. The player with the most total beans wins	Egg Boxes (Rikki) Beans	Rikki

You've got to be fit to survive in the jungle. Remember to your best and enjoy the adventure.
18:10 (20)	Jungle Obstacle Course: ● Crocodile crawl: Crawl under a table (watch out of snapping jaws) ● Vine swing: step/jump across the line of hula hoops without touching the "river floor" ● Spider web weave: Dribble tennis ball between the cones. ● Elephant stomps: Big Exaggerated stomps ● Coconut Toss: Throw the ball into the basket ● Monkey bar balance - arms out as if you balancing on a branch ● Leap over the lava pit (hula hoops) ● Final roar finish line: Sprint to the end and let out the biggest jungle roar crossing the line.	● Tennis balls x 2 ● Hockey sticks x 2 ● Cones ● Hula hoops ● Table ● Balance beam - (Baloo/felix) ● Chalk ● Balls x 2 ● Basket/ Bucket	All
Now you must be clever and quiet—the jungle can be noisy, but we don't have to be!
18:30 (10)	Quiet game: Steal the pirate's hat The leader is blindfolded. Has a pirate hat on his head. All cubs in a circle around the pirate. They must very quietly sneak forward but if the pirate points at you. You must go back and sneak all over again. Let's see how good the pirate is? GW: Chat about leaping wolf with Rikki (Olivia and Georgia)	Outside or in hall Pirate hat (Leela)	Colin

"The Littlest Roar"

A Jungle Yarn for Cubs

Once in the jungle, there was a baby lion cub named Pip.

Pip was the smallest cub in his den. When the other cubs practiced their roars, his came out more like a squeak.

"I'll never roar right," Pip sighed, flopping down in the grass.

Just then, an old wise turtle ambled by. "Young cub, why so glum?"

"My roar is tiny. Everyone else's is big and brave. I'm just... not good enough."

The turtle chuckled softly. "Little one, I've lived in this jungle a long, long time. Do you know what I've learned? Nobody asks the smallest flower to bloom like the tallest tree. They just ask it to bloom."

"So... I just need a bigger roar?"

"No," said the turtle. "You just need your roar — the loudest, bravest one you can give. That's all any of us can do."

Pip thought about that. He stood up tall, took the deepest breath his little lungs could hold, and let out the biggest roar he possibly could.

It still wasn't loud. But it was real. And it was all his.

From that day on, Pip roared his roar — his very best one — every single time. And slowly, day by day, it grew stronger.

Because that's what trying your best does. It doesn't make you the biggest.

It just makes you you — growing a little more, every day.
