18h10	5	Inspection: Scarves	None	Pack Scouters
Because Mr Bump is always bumping into things and getting hurt he uses a lot of band aids and bandages.
18h15	5	Steam release: Band Aid Tag In this game, every cub is it and can both tag others and be tagged. If a player is tagged, that player must take one hand and put it directly on the place where they were tagged. The hand is a band aid. After being tagged once, players continue to run around, avoid being tagged and attempt to tag others, but they must keep their band aid on and therefore only has one free hand. If a player is tagged again, they must take the other hand and place it on the second spot where tagged. The player can continue to run around with both band aids on. If any player is tagged a third time, they must go to the hospital and do five jumping jacks (or another pre-determined action) to get back in.	None	Rikki
Mr Bump was walking along, minding his own business when he bumped into a wooden post with a nail sticking out of it and he gashed open his leg.
18h20	10	Relay Game: Stop that Blood! In Sixes cubs need to run up and get 1 item at a time to treat a bleeding wound. Add in some items that are not useful too. Once cubs have all the items they need to discuss what to do and what to use to stop bleeding	Cell phone, gloves, gauze, plastic bags, bandages, tweezers,	Kaa

Now what has he done? Mr. Bump climbed up a tree to try rescue a kitten but unfortunately, he fell out of the tree and has broken his arm.

Mr. Bump was once a plumber and was trying to fix a leaking tap because he knew water is precious. He unfortunately made it worse by knocking off the tap and bumping his head but hopefully you won't be as accident prone. Go get a drink but remember your buddy and to turn off the tap properly.

Mr. Bump had many jobs, but because he is so accident prone he often ends up in an emergency situation.
18h50	15	Play Acting: Activate Emergency Services First discuss with the cubs what to do (who to call)/say in an emergency. Cubs need to call the relevant emergency service for help based on the scenario given to them and relay the correct information. Scenarios can include – Witnessing a car accident, finding mom lying on the kitchen floor and water all around etc.	Cell phones and scenario cards	Raksha
Mr. Bump really should carry around a first aid kit with him all the time. Let's help him pack his first aid kit.
19h05	10	Circle Game: My First Aid Kit The first Cub thinks of a word beginning with the letter A I packed my first aid kit with an arm sling The next Cub repeats the sentence and adds something beginning with B for example: I packed my first aid kit with an arm sling and a band aid The next player adds a word beginning with C etc.	None	All

		Play continues until someone can't remember the list or makes a mistake. Depending on their age, you can either prompt them or disqualify them! Keep going until all players but one is disqualified, or until you reach the end of the alphabet. Encourage cubs to think of items they would pack into a first aid kit but don't penalise them if the item is not what you would find in a first aid kit.

Yarn: Mr Bump

This is the sad story of Mr Bump.

The trouble was Mr Bump just could not help having little accidents. If there was something for Mr Bump to bump into he'd bump into it alright. For instance, if you were to see Mr Bump walking down the street in your town and if there happened to be something to bump into down that street then you know what would happen don't you? Bump! Mr Bump was just the same at home. He lived in an extremely nice home, but even there he couldn't help having those little accidents. For instance, one morning when Mr Bump went outside his house he noticed that the chimney pot had come lose in a storm the night before. "I must fix that before it falls off." He thought to himself and he hurried to his garden shed to fetch a ladder. It was a very long ladder. Mr Bump walked up the garden path with the ladder on his shoulder. He turned the corner of the garden path. CRASH went the living room window. "Oh dear" thought Mr. Bump and he turned to see what had happened. CRASH went the kitchen window behind him. "Oh dear" thought Mr. Bump again. And he rested the ladder against the wall of the house so that he could climb up onto the roof to mend the chimney pot. CRASH went the bedroom window, so you can see how Mr. Bump had his little accidents. Mr Bump had had many jobs but somehow, they never seemed to last very long. As soon as anything got lost or broken or splintered or chipped or snapped or cracked or torn or burst or wrenched or crunched or split or slit guess who got the blame? For instance, when Mr Bump worked on a farm he tripped over the farm dog and spilt the milk and the farm cat lapped it up. For instance, when Mr Bump was a postman he got his hand stuck in the pillar box. They had to fetch the fire brigade to come and set him free. For instance, when Mr Bump was a carpenter he found that when he was hammering nails he hammered his thumb most of the time and the nail hardly at all. In order to recover from the series of rather unfortunate happenings Mr Bump decide to go away for a holiday. There he could think about the sort of job he could do without being such a nuisance to everybody. So he set off to the station to catch a train to the seaside. While Mr Bump was on holiday several things happened. For instance, he fell off a boat into the sea and a life boat had to come and rescue him. For instance, one day when he was quietly walking along the beach minding his own business he got his foot stuck in a bucket and as he couldn't get it off he had to hop round with it on his foot for hours and as he hopped along the beach he hopped straight into a large hole that somebody had dug and he had to stay there all night as he couldn't climb out on his own. However, despite all these little accidents Mr Bump enjoyed his holiday and while he was there he had a splendid idea about what sort of job he should do. It was quite the very best idea he had ever had. An absolutely splendid idea. And now Mr Bump works happily for Mr Barley the farmer. Mr Barley has rather a large apple orchard on his farm and that is where Mr Bump works. Mr Bump's job is picking apples, but he doesn't use a ladder to pick apples like other apple pickers, oh no. Mr Bump has a much better way of picking apples than that. He just walks about and before long Mr Bump being Mr Bump walks into a tree. Down falls an apple and Mr Bump catches it. This makes the job of picking apples much easier. Mr Bump is very pleased about his new job and Mr Barley is very pleased about his new apple picker. So, you see the story of Mr Bump isn't so sad after all is it?
