Horton is an elephant who shook hands with his trunk. We as cubs shake with our left hand and salute with our right hand. Do you know your left from your right?
17:50	15	Inspection: Salute and Handshake Investments	None	All
While Horton, the jungle's eccentric nature teacher, takes a dip in the pool a speck of dust floats past him in the air, and he hears a tiny yelp coming from it. Believing that an entire society of microscopic creatures are living on that speck, he places it atop of a clover. Horton finds out the speck harbours the city of Whoville and its inhabitants, the Whos, are led by Mayor Ned McDodd.
18:15	5	Steam release: Don't Drop The Whos Cubs must keep the speck of dust (balloon) containing all the residents of Whoville up in the air. If the balloon drops that balloon is taken out of the game. Keep playing until time runs out or there are no balloons left in play.	6 Balloons	Ooh
Horton made a promise to Mayor Ned McDodd that he would take their speck of dust and place it in a more stable place before Whoville totally collapses. If you make a promise to someone you must keep it even if it is sometimes difficult. We as cubs and scouts make a very important promise when we get invested. Let's see if you can remember it.

18:20	15	Relay Game: Promise and Law Pick Up Sticks Write the Promise (or Law of the Pack) on craft sticks or paint stir sticks. Divide the Cubs into teams, with each team having a set of sticks. One by one, the Cubs go to the table, pick-up then drop the sticks on the table and reassemble them. Have an adult tally the score for each team (award 1 point each time the Promise or Law is assembled correctly).	craft sticks with words of the Promise written on them.	Sahi
One of the things we promise is to do a good turn every day. A good turn is something that helps another person without expecting a reward or anything in return. Do you know where the good turn came from?

Horton lived in the jungle because he was the jungle's eccentric nature teacher, so he cared a lot about nature. Remember water is a precious part of nature. Go have a drink, but remember to take your buddy and remember not to waste the water.
Jane Kangaroo, the head of the jungle, doesn't believe Horton's story about the Whos and thinks he is overshadowing her authority. She is afraid there will be anarchy if Horton completes his mission. Everyone must follow a law otherwise there would be chaos. Let's see if you can remember our Cub Law
18h40	10	Team Game: Ladders Divide into 2 teams. Cubs sit facing each other with legs outstretched touching. Number two cubs with the same number. On calling a number those two cubs jump up and run to the bottom of the ladder. One cub says "A Cub gives in to the Old Wolf: the other cub replies "A Cub does not give in to himself: after which both run up the ladder to their places.	None	All
Horton did a good turn for the Whovilles' by finding a new stable place for their home. He did not expect anything in return for doing this good deed.
Remember to do your good turn every day. Remember a good turn only counts if you do not accept any reward in return. One of cubs has done his best and is now prepared to go up to scouts. Please get ready for grand howl and the going up ceremony. Whoooo do you think it could be?

18:50	10	Closing Grand Howl Going up ceremony Announcements Flag Down Prayer (Cub Prayer) Good Hunting Dismiss	Totem/skin/ Flag/flag pole	Akela Six

New Chums: Promise and law.	Silver Wolf: Promise and Law: 1. Show that you are keeping your Promise and Law and that you have a growing understanding of your duty to God and your duty to your country.	Gold Wolf: Promise and Law: Show that you are keeping your Promise and Law and show that you are setting a good example to younger cubs in the pack.

Yarn: You may know the story of the Unknown Scout – The Origin of the Good Turn

One day in 1909 in London, England, an American visitor, William D. Boyce, lost his way in a dense fog. He stopped under a street lamp and tried to figure out where he was. A boy approached him and asked if he could be of help. The boy guided Mr. Boyce to his destination. Boyce reached into his pocket for a tip. But the boy stopped him.

"No thank you, sir. I am a Scout. I won't take anything for helping."

The boy told the American about himself and about his brother Scouts. Boyce asked the boy to wait a few moments. After finishing his errand, he had the boy take him to the British Scouting office.

At the office, Boyce met Lord Robert Baden-Powell, the famous British general who had founded the Scouting movement in Great Britain. Boyce was so impressed with what he learned that he decided to bring Scouting home with him.

On February 8, 1910, Boyce and a group of outstanding leaders founded the Boy Scouts of America. What happened to the boy who helped Mr. Boyce find his way in the fog? No one knows. He had neither asked for money nor given his name, but he will never be forgotten. His good turn helped bring the Scouting movement to America.
